“Do nothing from selfishness or empty conceit, but with humility of mind regard one another as more important than yourselves; do not merely look out for your own personal interests, but also for the interests of others” (Philippians 2:3-4, NASB).

Bible commentator Matthew Henry wrote, “We can put others before ourselves more easily when we are severe with our own faults and charitable in our judgment of others.” What if we were “easy on others,” while being “hard on ourselves?” That can be a bit tricky. Think of it this way: “What if we simply assumed the best of other brothers and sisters in our fellowship?” Know what would happen? It would be so much easier to serve them, because we are not assuming the worst about them. That’s what we call around here, “Loving in.” When we live Coram Deo – “in the presence of God” – it is impossible to think higher of ourselves than we ought to, (Romans 12:3).

However, our fallen, sinful nature makes doing this virtually impossible. Along with our sinful nature comes the ugly sin of pride. Pride is nothing to be proud about. (Think about that one).

Even as Christians, we struggle with the presence of sin. Paul knew this all too well when he wrote in Romans 7:21, “I find then this law, that evil is present in me, the one who wants to do good.”

So, how do we practice humility? By the power of the indwelling Holy Spirit, we seek to live each minute of each day in the presence of God, seeking to honor and exalt the name of Jesus, and we pray blessing and favor upon our brothers and sisters in Christ. We ask the Spirit of God to help us be others-centered, seeing others as more significant than ourselves, and considering the needs of others before our own. This is the great incongruity of being a Jesus-follower: the way to greatness in the Kingdom, is to be the servant of all, (Matthew 20:26; Mark 10:43).
