WATERSPRINGS BLOG

We are in the Lord's hands and can trust Him, for He loves us. We must keep sight of the end goal: that this world will never be our real home as Christians. There is something far greater awaiting us all.) You and I must choose to live our lives of faith as strangers in a strange land, and things here are getting stranger for sure. While on this journey here, we are clearly instructed to "Bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." (Galatians 6:2) So what does that mean?

It means we are to help our brothers, sisters, and even strangers in our midst as we love practically. It is important to remember that we are not called or created to experience the ups and downs of life alone, and neither is anyone else. (Genesis 2:18ff) (Please do not confuse being single with being alone. That is a conversation for another time.) We are created to participate in the Gospel-Centered Kingdom community of Christ together by loving one another.

We should never seek to isolate ourselves from others for extended periods of time. The discipline of silence and solitude can be a healthy spiritual practice; however, we are not to hide forever from the world and the love of our community. A love that we desperately need. Proverbs teaches us, "A man who isolates himself seeks his own desire; he rages against all wise judgment." (Proverbs 18:1)

Although I will admit, it is quite tempting to live in a bunker in today's crazy culture. Yet, since we cannot affect change for the gospel from under whatever mountain we choose to hide, at some point, we must return to the light and live for God by loving Him and others and allowing ourselves to be loved. For many, it is hard to ask for help, but sooner than later, we need others to come alongside us for the rescue. Allow yourself to be known and seek to know others so that you might know what it is to be beloved.
