FROM NEWS to Newness

Pastor Ty Orr

HOW THE GOSPEL TRANSFORMS US

The gospel is not advice for improving an old life; it is the announcement of what God has done in Jesus Christ. Paul calls it “the power of God to salvation for everyone who believes” (Romans 1:16). Christ died and rose, so those who belong to Him no longer need to live for themselves. They enter a new relationship, a new allegiance, and a new future. Paul writes, “If anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation” (2 Corinthians 5:14ff). Gospel transformation therefore begins with mercy given and grace received, not with character achieved.

But grace received does not leave us unchanged. Titus says the grace that brings salvation also teaches us to deny ungodliness and live in a new way while we wait for Christ. (Titus 2:11ff) Therefore, the gospel that pardons also trains us. It reaches beneath visible habits to the loves, fears, and loyalties that produce them. Remember, we do not obey to persuade God to redeem us. Because Christ has redeemed us, obedience becomes the fitting shape of freedom.

Paul describes this movement in Romans 12:2: “be transformed by the renewing of your mind.” The Greek verb metamorphōō denotes a change of form and, in this verse, is rendered as a continuing call to “be transformed.” The command is significant: Christian transformation is neither passive indifference nor self-manufacture. We present ourselves to God, resist the conformity to the world, and receive renewal through His truth and Spirit. A changed life grows from a renewed mind—one increasingly able to recognize and desire God’s will.

This transformation is both decisive and unfolding. In Christ, the believer truly is new; in daily life, that newness is steadily worked out. Old patterns may still protest, but they no longer possess the final word. The gospel gives us a new identity as the sons and daughters of God from which to fight, forgive, serve, and find hope in suffering.

Gospel transformation, the Spirit’s work, moves us to honest confession and repentance. Grace brings us into the light, where we can name sin without disguise and forsake it without despair. We do not turn so that God might become merciful; we turn because, in Christ, mercy has come near. The gospel changes our standing, then begins changing our steps.
