CAN YOU HELP A Brother Out?

Pastor Ty Orr

PART 1

The apostle Peter wrote, “Above all, keep loving one another earnestly, since love covers a multitude of sins.” (1 Peter 4:8) Peter is instructing a specific group of people, the elect exiles. These are the loyal followers of Jesus who have been barred from their native lands because of their faith. They have paid dearly for their faithful conviction in following Jesus and many of them will pay with their lives in the not too distant future from the time of Peters writing. They have been dispersed, or better yet chased or driven, into places like Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia. At that time where seeking to make a new life for themselves and families the best they were able as impoverished sojourners and refugees. Yet, Peters instruction is simple and profound. More than anything else they could or should be doing as the church they were to continue to love each other with intentionality. The same is true for our context today. Each believer is to love others with a sincerity and steely conviction with all seriousness. We are not to be slack in our love for one another for it is part of our witness. (John 13:34-35) Our command to love is not something we are to take lightly. Loving one another is not an afterthought it must be the first thought in our words and deeds. Peter then makes the point that this active sincere whole person love will cover a multitude of sins. So, what does that mean? Do we simply let sin abound among us because we “love” each other? Not at all. Instead we are to be walking together in relational communities in the newness of life together. (See Romans 6:1-4)
