PART 1

Two weeks ago, we considered a right and wrong way to respond to God's grace and love. Rejoice and bring Him glory or have a disruptive attitude towards those seeking, or in the desperate need to know Jesus and experience His grace. Well, I would hope that we would spend our time and energy seeking to bring God glory, serving and loving others as He has commanded us. (Luke 13:13; John 13:34-35) There is no question that all people need Jesus to transform their lives. How often do we know that truth and are more than happy to appropriate it for ourselves except when it comes to those we do not get along with are more than happy to see them suffer? Too harsh? No, not really. Just an uncomfortable truth we often world rather ignore. Let's consider this wisdom from Proverbs, "Do not rejoice when your enemy falls, and do not let your heart be glad when he stumbles; lest the Lord see it, and it displeases Him, and He turns away His wrath from him." (Proverbs 24:17-18)

We all have conflict because we live in the fallen world surrounded by sinners of every kind. However when difficulty, hurt, struggle, tragedy, or judgment comes on those who we oppose, we are not to get an attitude about it. We love to see the bad guys in a movie or book get their "come-up-ins" in the end. Why? Because it might just resolve the tension. We feel that the injustice we see in the story and in their suffering find some solace. Yet, I do not think this is how we are to respond to another's misfortune. Remember, we are to love and bless our enemies.
